15. 0. 0 81 A STAG HUNT. The view offers a hilly and well wooded country, on the foreground of which are two gentlemen on horseback, one of whom, dressed in scarlet, is mounted on a white horse with his back to the spectator; the other rides a bay; the former appears to be speaking to one of his attendants, who stands before him, and another is seated on a bank examining his foot; a spear, a dog and a dead stag are near him, and two more dogs are on the left; at some distance off are seen two huntsmen, accompanied by a man on foot, and dogs in pursuit of two stags. An early work of the master.

J. AND A. BOTH.

82 PEASANTS WITH MULES LADEN WITH CASKS: A landscape, exhibiting a grand mountainous scene under the appearance of a brilliant sunset. The composition offers on the right a broken mass of rocks scantily clothed with trees and bushes, and having a gush of water from their sides which flows precipitously to the foreground; upon a winding road on the same side and front is a man on a mule, driving two mules heavily laden with casks towards the spectator, and near this group stands a woman twisting flax, who appears to be in conversation with two travellers sitting by the roadside, one of whom is caressing a dog; a little beyond these are two goats at the foot of two trees; the road disappears behind some bushes on the declivity of a hill, and is seen again at the base of some rocks towards which several travellers are going. Close to the opposite side, or left of the picture, is a clump of lofty trees, beyond which the eye looks over the distant country to a chain of mountains, probably the Apennines. This delightful production is distinguished for the lovely freshness of its verdure, and the admirable breadth of effect, qualities not always found in this artist's works
